GENUINE HANDMADE ROOF TILES & FITTINGS

TRADITIONAL

Family tile makers since 1989

Past & Present

Since 1666, handmade plain clay roof tiles adorn some of our most historic and eye-catching buildings throughout the country.

Classic solutions and traditional technology unchanged for centuries - this is the source of our inspiration. In our work we combine history with modernity, enriching the 21st century's aesthetics with the beauty of the past. Originality and uniqueness are the features which distinguish our offer on the market and guarantee satisfaction from the most demanding customers.

Our roots...

We have grown together with our company, drawing from the experience and wisdom of generations of ceramic artists. We know that the strength and future of our company lie in wisdom, reliability and faith in our mission. We have been aware of this since 1989, when we first started the production of our tiles. Today we are a leading producer of handmade tiles, and our company's production capacity can reach up to 10 million tiles per year.

As a family owned and run business, our strength and future are forged together in trying to produce the most aesthetic and consistent tiles available.

Tradition demands that....

We continue to be faithful to the century old traditions and craft that precede today's technology, and that we strive to use the best practises available to produce the finest handmade tiles.

Our tiles are produced from our own high quality clay reserves, combined with natural environmentally friendly materials, and fired in a coal fired Hoffman kiln. Firing in this way bestows the tiles with their unique character and shades, which is virtually impossible to recreate with gas fired kilns.

Once fired, tiles are unloaded, sorted and palletted by hand. This is our final stage of quality assessment, as the human eye is the finest instrument to assess the subtleties of the finished products.

Our tiles

Traditional and Developer roof tiles have been highly popular in the UK for years. Customer base is constantly increasing, as in other regions of Europe. Our tiles are appreciated for classic elegance and the unique beauty of handmade products created with the greatest attention to detail.

TRADITIONAL RANGE Our finest range of tiles. With greater colour range and a much deeper texture, these tiles immediately have the appearance of tiles that have been in place for years.

Traditional Projects

Our tiles emphasise an individual style of the building, lending it a unique character and atmosphere. Accurate workmanship will cause the tiles to become its sophisticated feature as well as a permanent decoration.

With the long term beauty of handmade fired clay products and skilled installation, the roof becomes a permanent statement of individuality and style.

Quality guarantee

Quality control occurs at every step in the process, from our own raw materials through to the finished product. With loading and unloading of the kiln by hand, the tiles are visually checked before and after firing. All batches of tiles are tested within the factory to BS EN 538 Flexural strength, BS EN 539-1 Impermeability and BS EN 539-2 Frost Resistance. Further samples of tiles are independently tested and certified in the UK by Lucideon (formerly known as Ceram), approved by UKAS and British Standards Institute. Our tiles were also tested by German Keramik Institut GmbH.

All of our tiles come with a 30 year guarantee.
